prompt action in this matter.

The land question is rising out of the slough of forgetfulness. The fact that the right of every man to the use of land is being abridged, and vast tracts given to milroad rings and speculators of every form, shade and degree, through dishonest administration of the laws, is what est administration of the laws, is what concerns the public. A few years ago, hardly a man opened his mouth about these swindling land grants, depriving unborn generations of Americans of their heritage or birthright in the soil. The newspapers resembled so many Delphine oracles in more than one particular. Congress bartered away for so much palmoil to a ring of railroad kings, who palmoiled their hands, the imperial heritage of the people without even making them fulfit their contract.

These railroad grants were apparently

These railroad grants were apparently vested rights that no man thought of dis-turbing. Though such grants were great robberies, they lay slumbering in security, except when now and again roused for a second by the vain cries of justice, or by the firm stand of such men as were in favor of either forfeiture or building the railroad. Well, all that is altered now. If not in the heart, the land question is at least in the mouth of all men when they speak. Whoever writes on public matters now, cannot ignore the

In the past, while the people lay supine or only thought of modifying the white wage slavery in which they lived, the combination of congress and corporation could afford to do anything they picased; not only to swindle and rob the people wholesale and retail; but to insult them; spit upon them, in addition them; spit upon them, in addition to pub-lic robbery. The enormous swindles of the public lands have been clearly demonstrated to the comgress

What We Eat.

It is estimated that the state of Massa chusetts does not raise enough wheat during one year to supply the tables of that commonwealth with bread for one day, which is only another way of saying tory or the practical teachings of experi- that the residents of the old Bay state ence, men will, unfortunately, forget the have to buy what they eat. In this reone or ignore the other in their eagerness spect they resemble Astorians. We of to gratify some paltry pleasure, or in- Astoria have to buy nearly all we eat. In merewith to buy, but because the peas and the cabbage, the celery and the sauces, the fruit and other concomitants were tossing in the hold of the vessel out-side the bar. Whether wise or unwise; whether productive of prosperity or the reverse; whether necessary or not, the fact is rotent that nearly all we get is reverse; whether necessary or not, the fact is patent that nearly all we est is brought to us, and we pay well for it. The profit goes mostly to outside parties. Our merchants make very little, sometimes barely save themselves, oftentines lose. Especially is this the case with fruit, etc., which is brought here at a high rate of freight, and sold by our grocers more as a matter of accommodation than with a hope of making a profit. tion than with a hope of making a profit. The high prices that Astorians pay for food has been the subject of considerable omment in these columns. The reason for the high prices may be briefly stated: demand greater than the supply, and demand greater than the supply, and though when one has to pay fifty conts for a little beefsteak, ninety-five cents a roll for butter, and more for a dozen of eggs warrented eighteen carakt fine than First-class COAL OIL a Specialty. eigs warrented eighteen carals fine than for the hen that laid them, yet, the knowledge that the seller has such a slight margin of profit is illustrative of the proposition stated above.

of Oregon production, an A I article selling in Astoria for $1.50 a small sack. Sometime, when we have the Willamette valley wheat pouring into Astoria elevators from the railway track and Astoria mills grinding it for European shipment we may be able to get flour a little cheaper. Till then we must depend upon Salem or Albina. For hem, the Astorian has to depend on the Willamette valley, though a fair article of California ham is brought here. The best ham, we are constrained to say, comes from the east, and by the time it gets to the Astorian's breakfast table it costs enough to justify the expectation of a prime cut, twenty-one cents a pound not being an outside figure. Fresh meat is extremely high, and as it is one of the principal articles of purchase, the price that one has to pay for it is noticeable. The Astoria butchers have the reputation of furnishing neater, cleaner, fatter and juicier meat them the surrecept of say, other ing neater, cleaner, fatter and juicier meat than the purveyors of any other city in the northwest, and to meet the demands of their customers, situated as they are down here in the extreme west-ern part of the state, often taxes their abilities to the utmost.
